City Manager Selected For Redwood City

The city council at a special meeting held Wednesday evening, decided on one of the 15 applicants for a position as city manager for Redwood City, to fill that position. The candidate selected by the city council was E. A. Rollison, who, in the estimation of the city council, possessed qualifications which should make him very successful in his management of Redwood City.

Rollison was for six years city manager of Redding and later took charge of the same office in Santa Barbara. He is now engaged in representing a number of California towns before the State Railroad Commission in an effort to secure lower lighting rates. This hearing will be completed by the first of July, Rollison told the council, at which time he will be free to accept the position here.

The city council before accepting any of the applications made a careful study of the recommendations of the applicants, and were very favorably impressed by those of the chosen candidate.

When the news of the opening of a position here for a city manager was sent out, applications were received by the city council from all parts of the United States, many of the applicants being willing to leave better paying positions in order to come to California. The selected candidate for the position has been securing $6000 a year in previous positions, but expressed a willingness to work for a much smaller salary here as he believes that Redwood City has a future that few other cities of the state have, and will shortly be a much more important and better paying community than it now is. He was also impressed by the fact that the members of the city council were all strongly in favor of a city manager form of government as adopted by the people, instead of opposing the change as is the case in many communities.

Rollison was promised the fullest co-operation by members of the city council, and in turn promised to effect a saving in the management of the city government which will convince the people of Redwood City of the wisdom of the change in government made by them.

Who she will be has not yet been announced. It is the intention of the local Exchangites to have the aviatrix time her visit to be here at the time of the Exchange Water Carnival if possible and also for the Redwood City Progress celebration which will take place during the same week.

The woman's national air derby is attracting nation-wide attention, being the first affair of this type ever attempted. The flight will be made from California to the National Aeronautical Exposition, which will take place in Cleveland on August 26 and continue for one week. The derby, open to all licensed women flyers with 100 hours in the air to their credit, has been sponsored by Exchange clubs throughout the state, as a part of the national program of the Exchange clubs throughout the United States More than fifty entries have been made so far, including such notable flyers as Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly across the Atlantic; Bebe Daniels of film fame; and Lady Heath, English aviatrx.

Our Homes Are Our Castles

EDITORIAL

DOWN DEEP in every man's heart and in the soul of every woman, there exists a desire for a home that is all their own. There is an ever constant longing for a plot of ground with a house on it that they can gaze at with pride and say, "This Is Our Home." A home is a shelter from more than the elements. Home ownership adds to the financial security and social prestige of a family as can nothing else.

It's easy to own a home in Redwood City. Here you will find many willing hands extended to aid you in buying or building, to show you how to avoid mistakes, and even to help you in financing your home. Every year the number of home owners is increasing as people come to realize how simple the buying or building of a home really is. What home ownership means to the individual, the family and the community has been well summed up by the President of the United States, the honorable Herbert Hoover, in the following words:

"A family that owns its homes, takes pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it, and has a more wholesome, healthful and happy atmosphere in which to bring up children.

"The home owner has a constructive aim in life. He works harder oustide of his home; he spends his leisure more profitably, and his family live a finer life and enjoy more of the comforts and cultivating influences of our modern civilization.

"A husband and wife who own their home are more apt to save. They have an interest in the advancement of a social system that permits the individual to store up the fruits of his labor. As direct taxpayers, they take a more active part in local government. Above all, the love of home is one of the finest instincts and the greatest inspirations of our people."

As will be seen by the page advertisement elsewhere in this issue of the Times-Gazette which is sponsored by a group of our progressive business and professional men, a request has been made for an exchange of ideas or additional ideas on this subject. The end sought is to interest those not now home owners, especially the younger married people, in giving the matter serious thought.

Buying a home affords an excellent opportunity to broaden the vision and extend the business education to an extent never fully realized, until participation therein has been experienced.

Become a home owner here in Redwood City and become a permanent fixture. It is a safe and sound investment.

WEALTHY WOMEN KILLED IN CRASH WITH SPEEDER

Third Woman Removed to Hospital Suffering From Severe Internal Injuries; Driver Held in Jail

One of the most serious accidents which has occured here this year, occured Wednesday afternoon on the Middlefield road at Oak Grove avenue; in Menlo Park, and resulted in the death of two women and the serious injury of another. The accident occured when a car driven by Carl Flannigan of 140 Pope street, Palo Alto, an attendant at the base hospital at Menlo Park, struck a car belonging to Mrs. Henry J. Crocker of San Francisco.

Mrs. Crocker's car was driven by her chauffeur, Perry Spencer, and in it besides Mrs. Crocker, were Mrs. Louis Monteagle and Mrs. Fanny McCreary. As the car was struck by the other machine, both Mrs. Crocker and Mrs. Monteagle were thrown from the car and both suffered broken necks, which resulted in immediate death. Mrs. McCreary was also thrown from the car and badly injured. She was removed to the Palo Alto hospital.

The first on the scene of the accident was Officer Summers of the Atherton police and State Traffic Officer William Reily. The officers notified Sheriff McGrath, who with deputies Meeks and Callaghan, hurried to the scene of the accident. Flannigan was placed under arrest by the Atherton police, and booked at the jail.

At the jail Flannigan was examined by Dr. Harper Peddicord and was pronounced intoxicated. He became quite violent when brought to the jail and was placed in a padded cell.

The bodies of the two women were brought to the parlors of Layng & Tinney by Deputy Coronor John Layng. They were examined by Dr. Herbert Clattenburg, who stated that the cause of death in each case was a broken neck.

Both Mrs. Crocker and Mrs. Monteagle were prominent in San Francisco and peninsula society. Mrs. Crocker's residence was at 2310 Laguna street, San Francisco. That of Mrs. Monteagle was at 2220 Pacific avenue, San Francisco. The three ladies with Mrs. Van Fleet, also of San Francisco, had driven down to visit Mrs. Van Fleet's sister, Mrs. Silas Palmer of Atherton. Mrs. Van Fleet had earlier gone to Palo Alto to visit her son, W. C. Van Fleet in Mrs. Crocker's car. The chauffeur later returned to the Palmer home, and the three other ladies got in the car and were on their way to Palo Alto to get Mrs. Van Fleet when the accident occured.

At the hospital it was found that Mrs. McCreary's chest had been crushed, and little hope was expressed for her recovery.

Mrs. Fannie Crocker McCreary, daughter of the late Judge Clark W. Crocker of Sacramento, is a sister of Mrs. W. G. Van Fleet and the late Mrs. Samuel G. Buckles.

In 1896 she married Robert C. McCreary at the family home, 1609 Sutter street, subsequently, however, receiving a divorce on the ground of desertion.

Mrs. Henry Crocker, a sister-in-law of Mrs. McCreary, was the widow of Henry J. Crocker, capitalist and cousin of William H. Crocker, banker and Republican national committeeman. Henry Crocker was the son of Judge Clark W. Crocker of Sacramento, and Mrs. McCreary is a daughter.

Mrs. Crocker leaves four children, Harry, who has been engaged in motion picture work in Hollywood; Clark and Marion Crocker, living in San Francisco, and Mrs. Mary Julia Scully, wife of a Pittsburgh lawyer.

Before her marriage she was Mary V. Ives of a pioneer California family.

She was especially noted for her philanthropic activities. In September, 1923, she gave an addition to the Stanford Home for Convelescent Children, known as the Kate D. McLaughlin unit. Another of the benefactions for which she is especially remembered was her donation of a twenty-bed unit to the Stanford Hospital at a cost of $20,000.

Mrs. Monteagle was the wife of Louis F. Monteagle, San Francisco capitalist and leader in the work of the Episcopal diocese there. Mrs. Monteagle likewise was active in the work of the diocese and had been for many years president of the Women's Auxiliary of the diocese.

In addition to her husband she leaves two sons, Paige and Kenneth Monteagle.

Mrs. Monteagle, the daughter of Timothy Paige, was a noted figure in charitable work. Following the fire of 1906, she was a leader in organizing relief for families in need and especially where children were involved. She was for years a leading patron of the Pioneer Kindergarten Society, frequently entertaining the children at her home.

The home for crippled children at St. Dorothy's Rest, in Sonoma county, was given by her in June 1911, in memory of her grandmother, Lydia Cutter Paige.

She was active as one of the patronesses of the Seamen's Institute and aided in helping to raise the funds for that organization to entertain the sailors of the first fleet upon their visit to San Francisco on the opening of the Panama canal.

J. B. Wilson, president of the Coast Counties Gas and Electric Company, announced that the corporation has virtually completed its surveys for natural gas lines in its Contra Costa territory and that natural gas, both domestic and industrial, will be available not later than October. The natural gas is to be drawn from Kern county fields. The company serves Pittsburg, Martinez, Concord, Bay Point and Crockett. Contra Costa county communities are to be served from a branch line to be extended from Oakland eastward along the shore of Carquinez and Suisun Bay.

POULTRY

TURKEYS RAISED IN CONFINEMENT

Better Results Secured Than Where Poults Are Free.

In times past many people felt that turkeys could not be raised in confinement but that they should have a large area over which to range. This contention has changed now, however, and in several localities turkeys have been raised in confinement with a great deal of success.

The Minnesota and Nebraska experiment stations have been among the leaders in investigational work in turkey production, in recent years, with some such work being done at other experiment stations in various parts of the country. At both of the stations mentioned it was found that better results could be secured if the poults were raised in confinement than if they were allowed to range over a large area, the method once followed in turkey production. In view of these findings, those who wish to go into turkey production, either on a small or large scale, are no doubt interested in the practices to be adhered to in this method of turkey raising.

The United States Department of Agriculture has found that turkey production has declined consistently since 1890, in the face of an increase in the production of all other lines of poultry and live stock. This decrease in production cannot be attributed to a decrease in demand, for the demand has always exceeded the production, or at least, there has never been a surplus of turkeys on the market with which to contend.

This decline in turkey production can be explained almost altogether by the fact that farmers have always felt that turkeys should have unlimited range. Because of following this method of production the turkeys came in contact with the chicken yards, to the detriment of the turkey business. The disease problem among turkeys which come in contact with chickens is great enough that it has tended to cut down on production among farmers and farmers' wives who have, in the past, raised turkeys and chickens together on the same range.

In the Nebraska investigations it was found that the old method of raising the turkeys on the open range with natural hatching and brooding by turkey hens was not successful. On the other hand, artificial brooding and hatching, by means of which feed and environment could be kept under the control of the producer, was found to yield very good results.

Electric Brooders Are Clean and Convenient

The New York experiment station found electric brooders very satisfactory except in extremely cold weather, when this type of heat did not warm up the space in the house away from the brooder. Like electric incubators, brooders heated by electricity are clean, easy to regulate and very convenient.

Individual farm light plants extend the advantages of this electrical equipment to farms which are not located on an electric "high line." Because many farm plants are equipped with both generator and battery power, the supply of current for the incubator or brooder is constant and reliable.

Aylesbury Duck Meets Favor as Market Fowl

The Aylesbury duck comes from the Vale of Aylesbury, from which fact it derives its name. It is the market duck of England. It has a long body, deep keel, and legs placed a little behind the center of the body.

The Pekin is Chinese, and is the most popular market duck in America. Its legs are set far back, giving an upright carriage.

While the Indian Runner is not a popular market duck on account of its small size, its flesh is tender and palatable, and its foraging habits give it a game quality that will make it in demand with epicures.

Watch Young Birds

Watch young and delicate birds very closely as they are most susceptible to the deadly roup germs. The same is true of fowls suffering from common cold or catarrh. The throat and nasal passages, being already sore and inflamed, are easily infected. Sick birds should always be isolated. They can be much more effectively treated when away from the flock and they cannot contaminate the healthier ones if the disease should prove to be contagious.

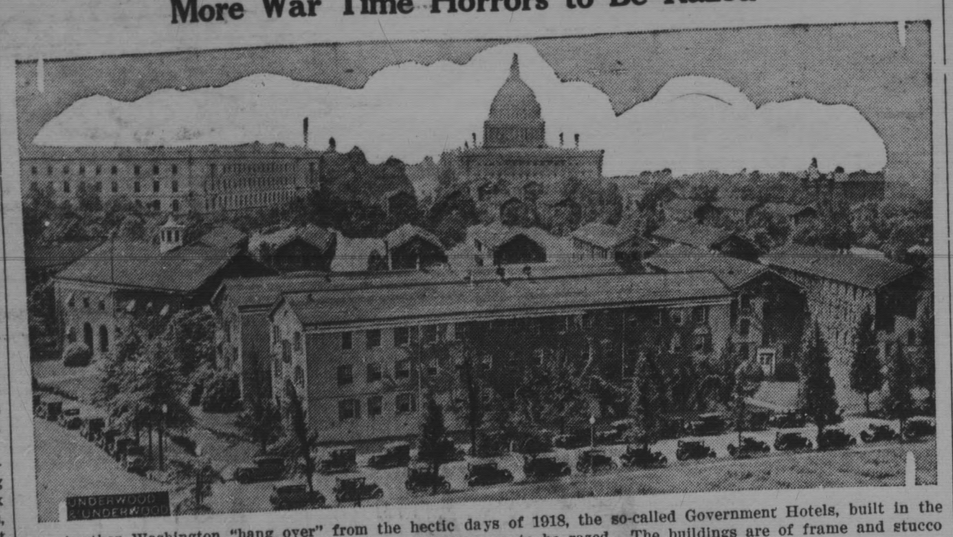
Don't Hurry Pullets

It is best not to hurry the pullets into heavy production. Allow them to come into production normally without feeding highly stimulating feeds. Fewer "blow outs" will occur when production is not forced on the start. Feed two parts of grain to one part of mash. The pullets will continue to gain in weight and still receive enough protein to encourage the egg organs to function without interfering with growth. Any change in feed is to be discouraged.

Pedigreeing Chicks

For pedigreeing chicks, the eggs of each female may be kept separate by partitioning the egg tray, but the more usual method is to use wire baskets or net bags. Mosquito netting is hardly substantial enough for making pedigreeing bags. Bags of heavier curtain material made with well bound seams will prove more satisfactory. Bags may be made of different sizes to care for varying numbers of eggs. A careful record of the eggs is absolutely

More War Time Horrors to Be Razed



Another Washington "hang over" from the hectic days of 1918, the so-called Government Hotels, built in the Union Station plaza to house temporary war workers, is soon to be razed. The buildings are of frame and stucco construction and have been called an eye sore for years.

Watermelon Time Comes to the North

Four little negro pupils of a Chicago public school pooled resources and got a watermelon from a peddler. Then the photographer came along. How much they like watermelon is nobody's business, but actions speak louder than words.

NEANDERTHAL MAN

The Neanderthal man, who roamed the earth about 50,000 years ago, has been reproduced in lifelike figures in a setting like that in which he lived, at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. The picture shows the head of the family.

Energy

Energy isn't everything, and does not of necessity guarantee success in life. It can be so diffused as to be wasteful, or so intense as to tire. The best work is that which is done quietly and thoroughly, without hustle.

Our Homes Are Our Castles

The very foundation of American life is the home.

A community is judged by its homes! As individuals, we are judged by our homes!

Five-sixths of the people of this community are living in family circles—homes. Over half of the space in this community is devoted to homes—houses and yards.

Fully half of our lifetime is spent in our homes. It is the center of our activities—the source of our greatest blessings.

Truly, our homes are our castles.

Your banker will tell you that the home is one of the greatest factors in the financial success of the average man and his family. It is usually the first and chief investment. Bankers will tell you that they loan more money to home owners than to any other class of people.

Public Officials will tell you that home owners are community builders. That the majority of the tax-payers are home owners and that they form the back-bone of the community structure.

The real estate man will tell you that more money is invested in homes and in home property than in anything else.

The builder and contractor will tell you that a true home, well financed, pays for itself. A home that will pay for itself and add to the convenience, comfort, pleasure, economy and efficiency of living, is the Ideal Home.

The lawyer will tell you that the home is the largest part of most estates, inheritances, financial, as well as sentimental—that home loving people are law-abiding people.

The insurance man will tell you that a home and a family is a fine form of insurance—that home owners are good insurance risks.

The churches will tell you that the possessors of homes are the chief supporters of the church—that they provide the physical and material assistance necessary for the religious activity of the community.

The schools will tell you that the home is the greatest adjunct to education. That home owners largely pay for the building and maintenance of the schools.

Civic and commercial clubs admit that homes form one of the best advertisements for the town—that house yards are more extensive than parks, and their appearance more important to the "Town Beautiful."

Business, professional men and skilled labor will all tell you that the building, furnishing and maintenance of homes is necessary to their business. That aside from the financial gain for themselves they are interested in helping you plan, build and maintain your home, helping you beautify your grounds.

Home owners are a double asset to a community. They take nothing from the community, but contribute abundantly.

Nothing is more constructive in the upbuilding of our community than good homes. Nothing is more destructive in our community than sub-standard homes. One of the chief factors in the community's existence is the HOME.

Let's exchange ideas on the "Home Beautiful" thought.

American Independence

INDEPENDENCE, the richest heritage which a people may pass on to its descendants; a possession which should be guarded with most zealous care, and yet which is sold every day for mercenary gain, or for stubborn ambition.

Next Thursday we will celebrate the so-called birth of this element in America. So called, because July 1776 did not mark the birth of America liberty, which was bread in American pioneers and through generations of British freemen who had wrested it bit by bit on the plains of Runnymede and a score of bloody battle fields. But that date does mark the birth of liberty as a national characteristic instead of a personal characteristic of America.

Personal liberty has been a prized possession of our race from the primitive times, when the warriors gathered in the tun moot to settle the affairs of their communities. Personal liberty still is a prized possession of the American. With the advance of civilization, however, it has been necessary to forego certain personal liberties, give up certain rights for the benefit of the nation as a whole. Still the fact remains that in America today there is a greater degree of personal liberty than will be found in any other national group.

To preserve the rights which we have, should be the most sacred duty of every American. To see that the aliens whom we admit are imbued with the desire, not alone to gain liberty for themselves, but to carry out the traditions of this country and pass on its liberties unimpaired to future generations should be our watchful care.

American liberties today are faced with two dangers, one internal, the other external. We have among us and are receiving every year, aliens who have no sympathy with America or American institutions. These aliens form a great proportion of our criminals and law breakers. Their actions make restrictions necessary which are restrictions on the liberties of loyal citizens as well as upon the class which they are intended to reach. These importations from foreign shores form the outside menace to our liberties.

Our internal menace lies in the accumulation of power and wealth by corporations and combines which place a higher value on the showings of the balance sheet than on maintaining the liberties and self respect of their employees.

The Fourth of July should stand for every American as a reminder of his duty to himself and his nation, as a warning against insidious propaganda whether from foreign groups inimical to American liberty and against institutions which would subvert American citizens and reduce the living standard of the nation. Against both groups America must set her face if she is to exist as she is today, a land of liberty and a place of opportunity for the workingman.

Leading the Procession

The Scurry County Times Signal of Snyder, Texas, the largest weekly newspaper in Western Texas, runs an interesting article showing how this enterprising little city in the southwest has provided the most modern and unique airport so far conceived for a town under 100,000 population.

Synder is building an airport sufficiently large to take care of air fleets together with a series of modern cabin inns to handle tourist traffic. More than 3,000 feet of landing area will be provided with clear approaches in all directions. The field proper includes facilities for housing, fueling and servicing planes. It has air markers that can be seen for 15 miles.

Airports are today the most essential thing in developing air transportation and Snyder is to be congratulated on its enterprise which sets an example for Redwood City and other towns in all parts of the country.

Wholly Un-American

ONE THOUSAND ITALIAN FASCISTS, who are American citizens, are going to Rome in a body this summer to pay worshipful tribute to Mussolini, dictator, destroyer of the free ballot and self-government, who crushes with iron hand all opposition to his absolute rule. They would better make a pilgrimage to Independence Hall, Old South Church and Williamsburg; or to the westward, seeing landmarks and shrines of American history from our east coast to the ends of the Oregon and Santa Fe trails on the west coast.

Then they would have a few lessons in what has been achieved by a people who rebelled against autocratic rule and declared themselves free of it on July 4th, 1776. We have required no dictatorships for our growth and development. When we got bad officials we had the power to turn them out. For that our forefathers fought.

And we opened our doors for people from other lands to get in step with our movement and to share its benefits. All we asked was that they understand our system and adopt our ways, and be of us in spirit and action as members of the national family. But these Fascist pilgrims have fallen under the spell of a master who makes all his Fascist recruits swear, "Mussolini is always right." Long before Mussolini was born, King George III said, "Anyone who disagrees with me is a traitor," as he set out to punish the American Revolutionists. And King Louis XIV of France said, "The State? It is myself." And passing that idea on to his royal successors brought on the French Revolution which made Frenchmen free to rule themselves and tax themselves.

It took bloody fighting, fearful sacrifices, grim determination, immortal courage, to win these rights, to which the present generation of Americans have become so habited that they do not always appreciate the value of their heritage, and how it can be safeguarded only by eternal vigilance. Because Mussolini is an Italian, some Italians, who call themselves Americans, pay tribute to his glamorous personality and his system which is building up a tyranny which, however appealing at present, must develop the ancient abuses.

These "boob" idolatrous pilgrims are not even one-tenth of one-percent Americans. They have no inkling of what was in the mind of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson or Abraham Lincoln; or what this country is about. Let them not return to the land in which they have thrived, and which sends them abroad bearing its passports, under its protection, travelling first class instead of steerage. Let them remain in Italy. Let them ask jobs from Mussolini under the home wage scales. He will say the glory of working for him is sufficient reward.

There are enough native Italians waiting their turn in the immigrant quota who would be glad to take their place. If we would receive all who would like to leave Mussolini-land for this republic, millions would be crowding the ships.

The worshipping thousand are a very tiny minority of all those of Italian blood in America. They are the exception which proves the rule of vast majority who, after the first appeal of his spectacular rise, grasped the principle for which Mussolini stands. Sentiment for the race of their origin, and its great part in civilization only strengthened their loyalty to the American system. All honor to them, worthy members of the American family, in this anniversary month of the Declaration of Independence. Mussolinism is Italy's business; but fealty to his system by American citizens is wholly un-American.

Getting Rid of Fog

THE famous heavy fogs of London in which citizens walked unknowingly past their own homes and transportation came to a stand-still, are decreasing. The official "sunshine records" show that London now enjoys 22 minutes more sunshine daily than it did in 1900.

This improvement is the result, not of a change in the weather, but of the decreased use of raw coal in London homes and the substitution of automatic, smokeless heat. Science has discovered that the fogs were to a great extent the result of a pall of smoke held down by low clouds.

American cities have never had the experience of London but the thick smoke that endangers buildings, plant life and health in many communities is, in the light of modern inventions, unnecessary and inexcusable. Automatic heat, furnished by oil and gas burners, both in home and factory, with its economy and efficiency, is fast replacing antiquated and unpleasant methods of firing with solid fuels.

Big Export For California Fruit Forecast for Year

SACRAMENTO, Jun 27—(CNB)—Count them as they move east during the next three months, 16,400 carloads of golden southern California oranges with 39000 cars of lemons as a chaser.

And notice at the same time the long trains of deciduous fruits rolling toward mid-west or Atlantic seaboard. Not so many as last year, but car requirements will be 75 per cent of those for 1928, which is 25 per cent better crop indication than when the May frost cut its swath.

The western states need 600,000 cars for the next quarter, with California using better than 90 per cent of them, the Pacific Coast Transportation Advisory board meeting here declared, estimating the gain in fruit tonnage this year as 10 per cent over that of last season.

if BOOKS ARE YOUR HOBBY

By ELSIE FORD

Literary and mental culture are obtained largely through the ability to read and absorb good literature and having absorbed it, to give to those surrounding us that mental nourishment which we have obtained, and thus in a small way to become educators.

Jesse Lynch William's book, "They Still Fall In Love," published by Charles Scrilmore Sons is a swift moving tale of love and laughter, youth and age — the youth of today not yesterday. The scenes for the most part are country houses on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, a modern college campus, an international banker's private car on a trans-continental train bound for China — and stranger destinations. The train moves fast, the story faster, telling the tale of a man and a girl and love. The man is what he himself and all his acquaintances call a "highbrow", the girl a "vamp." He had not seen her for years, and when he is invited to her home for a house party he goes reluctantly, feeling that he will be miserable among the type of guests he knows she will have surrounding her. Certainly he had no thought that the party was to bring about a love scene between the two of them and an engagement announced by her father. Such a state of affairs is intolerable to the "highbrow," who is devoted to scientific research and has no desire whatever to marry and mingle with society. But the "vamp' has deep schemes which involve him and determined to see the thing through. The result makes up a brilliant novel of high comedy dialogue. Both the young people determine to have things their own way and both decide they will never give an inch, the result of the struggle is far from what either of them imagined possible but is very satisfactory to themselves and to the readers of the book.

Nothing can supply the place of books. They are cheerful and soothing friends in sickness, lonliness, joy and sorrow, and everlasting monuments of accumulated wisdom.

The children are going to be delighted when they see the book, "Dickey Byrd" by Elizabeth Woodruff, and published by Milton Bradley, for a more captivating story for them is hardly to be imagined. In this story Dickey Byrd is an extremely lovable little boy with an imagination so extrème that his toy menagerie, the elephant, the camel, giraffe, and some wooden soldiers "come to lfe" and lead him a merry chase through marvelous adventures in the Land of Play The story characters will appeal to every boy and girl who reads the book for they will see in them reflections of their own little world of toys. Then too, they will love the kind fairies and michevious elves and Dickey's faithful dog Freckles. It is just the book for mothers, father or nurse to read to little sleepy heads as they go tumbling off to sleepyland.

Many false prophets arise and suggest lines of reading which will land one safely at the desired goal, but personal preference should always rule.

An intensely moving story of the unveling of a modern girl's live for a fascinating bounder is to be found in the book, "You" by G. Sheila Donnisthrope and published by Duffield Company. This book appeared serially under the title of "You, My Beloved," and those who read it, will want the book so that they may read it again. It is a novel written by a woman who surely understands women and their felings when they are in love, it seems as though the story must be true so faithfully does it portray the whole course of the woman, Nona's love. It takes the woman's husband to bring to her the full realization of what her lover Richard really is and little he amounts to, and with enlightment comes a change to Nona so sincere and heartfelt that the reader longs to tell her that they understand. Every man and woman will find "You" a novel well worth reading and studying.

"While the Bridegroom Tarried," by Edna Bryner and published by E. P. Dutton is one of the season's books that is causing a great deal of criticism, favorable and otherwise, from the press and public. It is the story of a man, John Alden Bennington, aged twenty-one, who spends the eve of his wedding alone loving himself, and thinking of the morrow and the woman who is to become his wife. The girl he might have married calls him up and suddenly he starts falling in love with her again, a proceedure which he continues even after his marriage with the other girl the following day. After two children are born to him and his wife, he manages to have his business take him away from home, where he remains for several years leaving his wife to bear the brunt of things while he continues in his own way. He returns home and shortly after his return his wife dies leaving him with another baby. From this point on the man becomes still more torn by a false sense of conficting duties, toward the girl who he might have married and who is still waiting and a third woman with whom he falls madly in love. To the women who love this young New Englander a man of eduaction and refinement but with no courage or initiative, he gives only tragedy or unmerited sorrow. With clarity and power Edna Bryner, the author, shows in this brilliant, extremely modern psychological novel, shows how excrable fate fashions the destinies of men and women.

Children gain a better knowledge of American history when their study is supplemented by reading matter which gives them a background of information related to valuable historical facts. For this reason Carolyn Sherwin Bailey has gathered information from old documents, yellowed with age, from which she has drawn her subjects for the book, "Untold History Stories," which has been published by the F. A. Owen publishing company. In this book may be found a picture of American life and industry from the time of the Iroquois confederacy to the election of Abraham Lincoln. All the stories add color and life to history and make it of real interest to the children.

STATE WILL CHECK CARS ON HIGHWAYS

Statewide Count Will Determine Needs Of Roads

By LAWRENCE MONPORT
(Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 26—(CNB)—Look pleasant please, Californians, as you are included in the greatest composite picture of traffic roaring down your own highways yet conceived.

It's to be a time exposure, with the Department of Public Works behind the focal lens and under the black cloth, and the birdie on which you are to concentrate your rapturous attention is possible early inclusion of San Mateo County roads in the state's secondary system

Set for a year long count of cars flashing by 116 state checking stations in addition to 48 which the federal government will maintain, the state's marathon census is expected to produce information which will guide its road builders for many a year to come Redwood City's checking station will be located just north of the city limits, it was indicated today.

With the actual count of noses will be a rapid-fire interrogation of whence comes the motorist, withergoing and how does he get that way, not out of idle curiosity but to guide the highway commission in determining location of routes, widths of pavements, types of materials and details of the mass of necessary information on which shortest roads may be balanced against those serving the widest possible public need without becoming the longest way home.

Announced by State Highway Engineer C. H. Purcell, the census will be largely confined to main north and south highways, important cross state routes and other major roads, and stations will be located so as to give accurate cross section of travel on county roads as well.

Linked with the survey promised by Director of Public Works B. B. Meek on which the state highway will base its recommendations for inclusion of county roads in the secondary system, on which the 1929 legislature will act, the year-long traffic count is expected to indicate definitely those locally-maintained routes which now are carrying a proportion of through travel out of all balance with local traffic.

The check may show that traffic has fallen off on some roads through recent construction of new and more popular thoroughfares, but on the whole, Purcell declares, the census may be expected to register a huge increase in highway traffic in the state.

Too Hot To Eat?

HOW often during the hot summer months you sit down to eat and get up without taking a bite. You say, "It's too hot to eat."

When you have this feeling, you should eat summer candy. Candy is the most appetizing of the carbohydrates,—and carbohydrates are essential to a strong body and a healthy system. These carbohydrates stored up in your tissues give your system the necessary fuel for energy and activity, thus preventing your tissues from burning up. This last is the real reason for summer irritability and lack of appetitie.

You can get your candy, made especially for summer weather, at your Rexall Store at unusually low prices. Eat our summer candy for summer energy.

"Skyscrapers" at Limit?

New York.—Where 100,000 men once spent 20 years building a pyramid for the Pharaohs, a thousand men now rear a modern skyscraper 50 stories into the air in a single year. But where the Pharaohs raised their monuments to stand for all time, the life of the modern monument to commerce is fixed at 25 years. Children who watch these lofty towers reaching toward the sky today in New York, Chicago and a score of other cities will, as middle-aged adults, see them leveled again.

The explanation is that the average skyscraper is being built comparatively as cheaply as a subdivision bungalow because the builder cannot afford to take chances on the course of rapidly changing land values as the American city changes its course of growth, points out Silas Bent in World's Work. They cannot risk sinking a fortune in a giant office structure only to find that within 10 or 15 years the district has changed from a commercial one to a manufacturing center. They also cannot risk encumbering land that may rise many times in value with a building that may be antiquated within a decade.

Whether the 75-story skyscraper soon to be erected in Chicago will mark the ultimate in lofty construction, or whether it will be surpassed by a 110-story tower projected in New York and by others still higher, is a problem interestingly discussed by Mr. Bent.

While theoretically there is no limit to which builders may not aspire today, there is a rigid economic limit at which such buildings cease to be profitable, he shows. And the limit is due to one of the chief factors that made the skyscraper possible—the elevator.

"The taller the building, the greater must be the number of elevators to accommodate the tenants," he points out in the World's Work article. "Now where ground rentals are enormous the space given over to elevators becomes an item of moment. In cities of a million population it is calculated that the 20 story building is about as lofty as is consistent with economic construction. Only where land values are abnormal, or where there is exceptional advertising value in mere height, are more stories justified."

A building so high that it must give a third or half of its ground space over to elevator shafts would necessarily be far more costly than one only two-thirds as high, and not as profitable, he shows. So that unless engineers devise some apparently impossible means of indoor transportation for the tens of thousands of inhabitants, the skyscraper soon will have reached its positive limit.

Proposed International Park

Minneapolis, Minn.—An area of lake and forest four times larger than Yellowstone National park and lying in the heart of the continent among the border lakes of Ontario and Minnesota will be dedicated for all time to a manysided and far-reaching project of conservation if the conservationists of Canada and the United States have their way. It is proposed to set aside by treaty under a uniform policy of balanced forestry administration some 10,000,000 acres of forest lands which, it is estimated, contain more than 3,000 connected lakes.

What is known as the Rainy Lake watershed, lying in the two countries, will be devoted to the maximum production of forest and related crops but with all the natural features of its lakelands—the rapids, waterfalls, islands, and wooded shores—kept inviolate as in a park. These rock-bound lakes with their original flora and fauna, their ancient Indian tribes, and their historic past will become a wilderness sanctuary.

An organization for the purpose of fostering and achieving such a dedication has received the enthusiastic support of distinguished men and women from every part of the continent. It is associated with the Izaak Walton League of America and is known as the Quetico-Superior council, with headquarters in Minneapolis. The name merely emphasizes its international character, being derived from the two forest preserves established in the region twenty years ago—the Quetico provincial park in Ontario and Superior national forest in Minnesota. The council is a temporary international body for mustering the support and directing the efforts of all individuals and societies in both countries, who are interested in its purposes.

The council also has announced a list of ten honorary vice presidents, as follows:

Dan Beard, national scout commissioner; Anna Botsford Comstock, professor emeritus of nature study, Cornell university; Dr. Henry van Dyke, president National Institute of Arts and Letters; Dr. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus Leland Stanford university; Stephen Mather, founder and former director United States park service; Jack Miner, Canadian conservationist; Gifford Pinchot, founder and former chief United States forest service; Kermit Roosevelt, explorer and sportsman; Ernest Thompson Seton, naturalist, artist, author; George Shiras III, faunal naturalist and wild game photographer.

In addition the council has associated with itself a board of advisers, representing every aspect of this international project.

SIDE-TRACKED

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

The information office had told us when we were leaving Lausanne that the train we were taking was a through train for Paris and that we should not have to change until we reached our destination. We got along quite satisfactorily until we reached Dijon, and then something appeared to happen. We were run off onto a siding and there we stood. No one offered any information, and we were finally awakened to the fact that we were the only passengers left in the car rings. We got off to reconnoiter, and from the guard at the station, after having pretty completely exhausted our stock of French phrases, we discovered that we were sidetracked for the day and that there was no other train leaving Dijon for Paris until the next morning. We were in a predicament; we had little ready money, and there seemed no easy way for us to get more. We should miss our connection in Paris, and our friends at the other end of the line would be annoyed and disappointed, but there was little we could do. We'd got a wrong start; we had been sidetracked, and the only thing we could do was to make the best of it. Next time we should get more accurate information.

It is not an uncommon thing for men starting out on the journey of life to get side-tracked, and once on the siding it is sometimes difficult or impossible to get off again.

Glasgow had great prospects as a preacher. He had a commanding physique, an appealing personality, and a most thorough intellectual training. He married a woman of fine character and with unusual initiative, and it looked at the outset as if they were on the through train for power and influence in the community in which they established themselves. But Glasgow had scarcely started until he became sidetracked. He lost sight of the great principles of religion which make for better influence and better living and centered his attention upon the petty details of dogma, upon the unimportant differences which separate sects, and gave all his energies to the emphasis of these things and he lost entirely the power and the influence which he might have exercised. Instead of being on the main line he spent his life puffing up and down a side track.

Bower is side-tracked. He had a chance twenty years ago with a firm in which the greatest possibilities were open to him. But the salary was small and Bower wanted to make money at the outset. There was a girl he wanted to marry, and he could not wait. So he went with a smaller and less significant firm where the salary at the beginning was larger and the prospect of advancement less bright. That was a good many years ago, and Bower is making little more today than he was when he started and he is too old to change. He is permanently side-tracked.

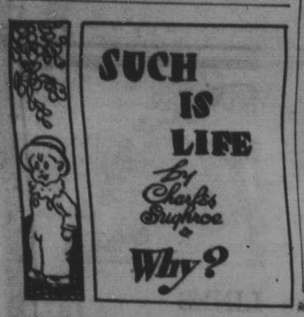
Gets 628 Stitches

Atlanta, Ga.—Six hundred and twenty-eight stitches were taken in the body of J. W. Sanders, twenty-one, after he drove his car head-on into a street car here.

Students Will Tour 8,000 Miles in Bus

Worcester, Mass.—An 8,000-mile trip to California and back will be part of the regular summer school session at Clark university this year. About thirty students will attend the portable school, which will be in charge of Professor Burt Hudgins of the College of the City of Detroit. The journey will be made in a motor coach. During the daily trips of 150 to 250 miles, the professor in charge will direct the observation and interpretation of the natural regions through which the students travel.



To Test Educational Theory

New York.—As a means of testing the theory, long held by educators, that if a boy were allowed access to the paraphernalia of a number of trades and professions he would choose the one for which he was best fitted, $300,000 will be spent at Hill School for Boys, Pottstown, Pa.

This sum, for a new science building, was given to the institution by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, who donated the famous Widener library to Harvard as a memorial to her son, drowned on the Titanic.

It is the hope of the authorities of the school that by placing at the disposal of the students various laboratories, work rooms and study halls in which will be placed all kinds of apparatus, the students, after roaming through all of them and stopping to familiarize themselves with each, will find, by natural processes, the fields for which they are best fitted.

To this end the new science building will have all sorts of laboratories in which a student may carry on any experiments that strike his fancy. There will be a chemistry group where boys can claim an individual room if they are interested in this line. On the top floor will be a miniature observatory with a telescope.

In the basement of the building will be all manner of heavy machinery for boys who are mechanically inclined. Radio and photographic laboratories also will be provided.

The room about which most interest doubtless will center will be the aviation room. In this space will be tools, instructions and literature for use in building model planes which will fly under their own power.

Michigan Homes Buried Under Shifting Dunes

Lansing, Mich.—"Blowout" in the dunes of Michigan are making "walking dunes" of them and burying houses, forests and fruit farms, and the state conservation department has opened an investigation to determine some means of remedying the situation.

Large dunes along the shores of the Great Lakes, heretofore protected by heavy vegetation, are being literally transferred to other localities by action of the lake winds, it has been found. This is caused by removal of forest growth to make way for summer homes. Once a "blowout" as these shiftings are termed, is started, nothing has been discovered that will stop it, and thousands of dollars worth of property is endangered by the movement.

Development along the lakes furnishes Michigan with one of its most profitable industries—tourist trade—and the problem is being attacked with the idea in mind that such development must not be interfered with.

Co-operation of the geological division of the University of Michigan has been enlisted in the campaign to prevent the dune blowouts.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Why Freezing Bursts Pipes.

We generally think of the principle that all things expand with heat and shrink as they cool. Why then do frozen water pipes burst? Water obeys the shrinking rule down to within a few degrees of freezing, but at freezing it expands greatly as ice is formed. This expansion bursts the pipes.

Unearth Remains of 48 Ancient Villages

Zurich, Switzerland.—One of the most interesting archeological discoveries of recent years was made when the remains of 48 villages of lake dwellers were found on the shores of Lake Constance. A majority of the villages were away from the water, indicating the lake probably was ten feet higher ten thousand years ago than it is now. One village is believed to date back to an age when man was unacquainted with agriculture.

Texas Claims Largest Wheat Field, 6,000 Acres

Heresford, Texas.—This section of Texas has issued claim to the largest single wheat field in the state, and is shooting at national honors. The field of grain is under one fence and comprises 6,000 acres. Production is expected to total about 200,000 bushels of wheat valued at approximately $250,000.

WON RACE EASILY

Ray Keech, daring young Philadelphia driver who won the big Indianapolis 500-mile race, had a remarkably easy time of it. He never as much as raised the hood of his tiny eight-cylinder racer and never got out of his car during the gruelling five-hour grind. He stopped once to replace a blown-out tire.

Beauty of Ordering by Mail

Women Willing to Work Way on Ocean Liners

Modern women hear the call of the sea just as insistently as do their adventurous brothers, judging by shipping companies' long waiting lists of women seeking jobs on ocean liners.

Hundreds of applicants for positions as stewardesses, conductresses, nurses, manicurists, hairdressers and shop attendants on shipboard present themselves to shipping companies weekly.

Many of them are women of good birth and education, and with a love of travel, but who cannot afford world tours and are willing to work their way in order to get them.

Shipping officials point out, however, that shipboard jobs are so strenuous and exacting that there is no chance for the woman who takes them as a means of cheap travel getting to see much of the world while she is working in a liner.

Pretty Sentiment Had No Weight With Judges

Senator Edge said at Atlantic City the other day:

"I see by the papers that they have cut out beauty competitions down here. A good thing, too.

"What lots of queer competitions there are nowadays! They had a competition in Tamaqua last month for the most beautiful thing in the world—a description in a sentence of the most beautiful thing in the world.

"Everybody thought that the preacher would win the grand prize, for his description was:

"'My mother's eyes.'

"But the president of the chamber of commerce won with:

"'The most beautiful thing in the world is to see a man carry his mother-in-law across a deep and dangerous stream without trying to drop her in.'"

Larks for Hawaii

The Hawaiian islands are not as rich in bird and animal life as the mainland of North America, according to a bulletin of the American Game Protective association. There are many species of interest and value, but Americans who have adopted Hawaii as their homes have missed the American meadow lark; consequently, arrangements have been made for the shipment of 50 pairs of Oregon meadow larks to the Hawaiian islands. The lark is desired in Hawaii not alone for its cheerful and beautiful song, but for its economic usefulness in destroying insect pests.

Punished for Short Skirts

Short dresses worn by some of the maidens of Buchau, Czechoslovakia, were responsible for the severe cold spell in Europe. So declared the preacher of the Buchau church, recently. He announced from the pulpit that a spirit appeared to him and explained about the weather and the dresses. His pious congregation accepted this interpretation of the phenomenon, and on leaving the church after the services set upon four girls whose dresses were particularly abbreviated, severely beating them until the police rescued the girls.

Schalk Has Seen Host of No-Hit Ball Games

In respect to no-hit games, Ray Schalk probably holds a record. Many ball players put in years of playing in the majors without seeing one of these classics. Ray has caught five of them and seen two others from the bench.

He was behind the plate when nine innings of hitless ball were pitched by Herb Russell, Jim Scott, Joe Benz, Eddie Cicotte and Charlie Robinson. He saw Ted Lyons turn the Red Sox back without a hit in 1926, and recently, as acting manager of the Giants in the absence of John McGraw, he saw Carl Hubbell stand the Pirates off without a hit.

Scott, Ray recalled, did not allow a hit for nine innings, but was beaten 1 to 0 in the tenth, while Robertson's was a perfect game, in which no enemy hitter reached first base.

John Evers Is Reminded of Cubs-Giants Fights

Johnny Evers was one of the heroes of the days when the Cubs and Giants were bitter rivals of the diamond, and he sees another chapter in the old fight this season in the National league pennant race. Says Johnny:

"It will be like old times to see the Cubs and Giants battling each other in the final stages of the race. I'd like to see a jam like the one we went through in 1908. That was a season I'll never forget. The game was rougher then. The players were tougher. The ball was dead. I often wonder what some of the hard hitters of those days would do to the present ball."

O'Farrell Is in Form as Backstop for Giants

When the Cardinals won the National league pennant in 1926 Rogers Hornsby declared that a major portion of credit for that feat was due Bob O'Farrell for his skillful handling of the pitchers and his timely hitting. He may come to pass this year that O'Farrell's work will give the Giants just the edge they need to win the flag, for after an off year in 1928, Bob is coming back amazingly. He is dividing the catching equally with Frank Hogan and is pounding the ball in the pinches again, just as he did when he was with the Cardinals, and before that when he played with the Cubs.

Coach Attacks Golf

Tuss McLaughry, football coach at Brown, though a golf enthusiast himself, picks some flaws with the links game, and says football develops a man to better advantage. He says: "Golf doesn't cause the development of character and the co-operation of mind and body that football and other competitive sports do. Football is the only game in which bodily contacts are allowed. This direct physical competition develops moral character and strengthens the body."

Another Vivid Yarn of Western Golf Ace

Speaking of holes-in-one in golf, tie this one! Robert France is a member of the Sacramento (Calif.) fire department and makes no pretense that he knows much about the technique of golf. In fact he handled a club for the first time on the practice links at the rear of his fire station the other day.

He swung heavily three times. On the fourth try the globule spun down the fairway.

What happened was told by his friends.

The ball hit a barn, a garage, a fire bucket, a dishpan, a piece of fire hose, and then lodged in the cup 150 yards away.

Believe it or not!

Frankie Parenti, who led the second basemen in the Central league last year with the fine mark of .979, apparently has made good in the Eastern league.

Shortstop Johnny White has been sent to the Des Moines club of the Western league under an optional agreement, officials of the Columbus Senators announce.

Harry Krause, left-hand spitball pitcher of the San Francisco Mission Reds, Pacific Coast league, is going strong again this season, his twenty-first year in organized baseball.

Pacific coast teams are strengthening in an effort to head off the Mission club. Los Angeles bought Fred Haney from the Cards. Haney was a big cog in Indianapolis' A. A. victory last year.

Rip Collins, Rochester first baseman, leading the home run hitters of the International league, practically won the pennant for Rochester in the closing days of last season by hitting home runs at Montreal.

* * *

Baseball was invented 90 years ago by Gen. Abner Doubleday, but it was not until 1846 that the first real contest was played in Hoboken between the Knickerbocker and New York nines.

Beryl Richmond, a promising young southpaw with Baltimore was not getting much chance to work so he asked that he be transferred to some club where he could pitch in turn. The request was granted and he was optioned to New Haven of the Eastern league.

JOHNSON'S GREAT PITCHING STUNT

Three Victories Over Highlanders Stand Out.

His three shutout victories on successive days against the New York Highlanders in 1908 stand out as one of the greatest pitching feats of Walter Johnson's 20 years on the mound for Washington.

Johnson, whose twentieth anniversary in the big leagues will be observed on August 2, readily admits that those 27 scoreless innings gave him one of the biggest thrills in his colorful career.

Just a rookie was Johnson then, strong as an ox and possessed of blinding speed, and he eagerly jumped at the chance to work so often against New York when Manager Cantillon asked him to do so because of injuries to a trio of Washington pitchers.

Johnson faced Chesbro in the first game and triumphed, 3-0. He won the next day by a 6-0 score and, after resting Sunday because no games were played on Sunday then, he worked in the first game of Monday's double-header and again registered a shutout win.

This feat might have been four straight scoreless victories had not Johnson been injured by a pitched ball. He was ready to start the fourth successive game of the series, but Manager Cantillon refused to let him go in because of his injury.

"That," says Johnson, "is the only time in my career I was ever called upon to pitch so many games during one series, and I doubt very much if I could do the same stunt again. Father Time doesn't stand for such tricks, you know."

Ty Turns to Golf

Ty Cobb, for 20 years a star of the diamond, has turned to golf. This is one of the first pictures made of him on the golf course at the Forrest Hills club near Augusta. During his diamond career Cobb said he'd never play golf because he thought the game would spoil his batting eye. Now he's retired from the ball field and golf pros say his eye is just as keen on the fairway. He's never missed the elusive pill yet.

GOVERNOR HAS MANY JOBS TO GIVE OUT NOW

150.. Political.. Plums To Be Distributed By Executive

SACRAMENTO, June 27—(CNB)—Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party by seeking some of the 150 or so appointments which Governor Young will dole out from his sun-kissed, breeze bathed-summer capitol "Playa del Rey," on the Venice-Long Beach shore.

Facing the most formidable billetting program in years, the Executive must pick, in addition to directors of four new departments and successors to outgoing officials the personnels of literally dozens of commissions, all of them important and some of them destined to write state history.

Four commissions of nine members are to be erected; one of engineers to check and make definite recommendations on water co-ordination, particularly in relation to the federal government; a second of laymen to investigate educational problems, a third to look over the California legal code and a fourth to advise on agricultural affairs.

"Fifteen men on the dead man's chest," if that is a respectful manner of referring to our riddled constitution must be selected for the constitutional revision commission; a new mining board of five is to be erected; three new civil service commissioners are to be chosen; the existing or a new crime commission is to be appointed; 10 members of the architect's examining board; five to serve as embalmers' examiners; three to be overseers of civil engineers, just brought under the state licensing; five to supervise the yet-to-be-built women's prison.

From the "play-ground of the king", also, the Governor must consider agriculture's needs by naming a board of three to seven members to consider financial problems of irrigation districts; name two of 14 members of the directorate of the California Agricultural Society which hereafter will manage the state fair under the protecting wing of the department of finance; but most important of all will be the fourth commission of nine, that which will attempt to take county government affairs out of legislative and administrative state hands and place them back on a full and unrestricted local self-governing basis At least, some means of doing away with evils of the so-called "county government" bill is to be found.

He must name also, five members of the American River flood control board; a narcotic director, a chief of division of lands, and will be consulted regarding the superintendent of the new state traffic patrol. Then there is a fifth member of the emergency council, formed to set up quasi-material law in times of emergency, to be named; two of five members of a commission to select a site for the new southern prison and four persons to serve with the state superintendent of schools on a board of governors of the state nautical school.

General R. E. Mittelstaedt, it is forecast, will head the new department of military and veterans affairs; James A. Johnston, former San Quentin warden, the department of penelogy, and heads of insurance, real estate, corporations and insurance bureaus and the state banking offices will in turn rotate as directors of the investment relations department, each serving six months.

Who will ride herd of doctors, barbers and the rest of the formerly independent agencies into the department of professional and vocational standards doesn't appear, but it is certain that the Governor's appointee will never have welded a razor or a stethoscope professionally, or engaged in any of the other vocations with which the position will bring him in contact.

NEWSPAPERS FOUND BEST ADVERTISING

Ice Companies Study Methods of Selling

CHICAGO, Ill., June 24—Sixty-eight per cent of the ice companies of the country find that newspapers provide their best local advertising media, according to a survey recently completed by the National Association of Ice Industries. This compares with 63% which use advertising banners on their delivery vehicles and 44 per cent which employ direct-mail advertising.

Thirty-two per cent of the companies report using newspaper advertising throughout the year; 7 per cent for seven to ten months; 15 per cent, for six months of the year; and 14 per cent, for one to five months. The trend is towards year-round local ice advertising.

"Our members are finding that it pays to reflect the year-round national publicity of the industry in the newspapers of their communities", states Robert McKnight, director of publicity of the association. "We provide members with newspaper advertisements duplicating the national publicity By using these advertisements, and others adapted from them, members closely identify themselves with the national educational campaign on the use of ice in the home.

"Our members are learning that to sell ice the year around they must advertise the year around. Incidentally, ice companies today are not merely advertising ice but are informing the public what ice will do for the health and comfort of the family, how it is used not only in the ice box, but in the kitchen and on the dining table, how ice maintains a constant cycle of cool, fresh air in the refrigerator, what constitutes a good ice refrigerator, how to arrange foods in the ice box to get the best results from ice and how inexpensive ice is compared to other forms of refrigeration.

REPRESENTATIVES TO MEET AT COUNTY CONVENTIONS

SACRAMENTO, June 26—(CNB) San Mateo County's legislative and congressional delegations will represent it in the party conventions of their respective members with county central committees filling vacancies it was established recently as the Inman bill intended to amend conditions which lost the progressive wing of the Republican party control of its state central committee, won gubernatorial approval. In case party nominees have been named prior to the convention, however, these will be members of the convention, which also will be made up of constitutional state officers.

Members of the convention and three persons selected from his own county or district will constitute the central committee of all parties in the future, a set-up which is expected to provide for harmonious party management, according to administration politicians.
